A BRIEF HISTORY OF INDEPENDENCE DAY

We think of July 4, 1776, as a day that represents the Declaration of Independence, America's revolutionary Charter of Freedom and the document upon which the nation's founding principles were established. But July 4 wasn't the day that independence was declared. Nor the day that the Declaration was officially signed.

So what did happen on July 4, 1776?

What this holiday commemorates is the adoption of the Declaration of Independence on July 4, 1776, by delegates from the 13 colonies. On the 4th, the Continental Congress approved the final wording of the Declaration of Independence. This is the day we celebrate the birth of the United States of America.

Here are more dates to remember:

April 19, 1775 was the start of the American Revolution. During the Battles of Lexington and Concord (Mass.), the first shots were fired between colonists and British troops. On July 2, 1776, the Second Continental Congress voted for independence from Britain.

Two days later, July 2, 1776, Congress approved the final draft of the Declaration of Independence, drafted by Thomas Jefferson and edited by John Adams and Benjamin Franklin. On July 8, the first public reading of the Declaration took place at the Pennsylvania State House (now Independence Hall) in Philadelphia, Pa. Later that day, other readings occurred in Trenton, N.J., and Easton, Pa. Printer John Dunlap made about 200 copies of the Declaration, with the date of July 4 that were distributed throughout the 13 colonies. However, it wasn't until August 2, 1776, that the Declaration was officially signed. John Hancock, president of Congress, was the first of 56 delegates who signed this enlarged version, writing in big, bold letters.
